

Our annual Hillman Prizes and monthly Sidney Awards honor and amplify the best reporting on social and economic justice.

Submissions are judged by a distinguished panel of journalists: Harold Meyerson, Ta-Nehisi Coates, Hendrik Hertzberg, Rose Marie Arce, and Katrina vanden Heuvel.

Other Sidney Hillman Foundation programs include:

- The Canadian Hillman Prize, which rewards pioneering reporting on social and economic issues in Canada
- The Hillman Award for Excellence in Social Justice Reporting at the CUNY Graduate School of Journalism
- The Sol Stetin Award for Labor History
- Our blog Clear it With Sidney
- Sidney's Picks, our weekly news round-up, and
- Public forums on topical issues.

Join our email list.
Submit your own work, or nominate work you admire.

Visit our website at HillmanFoundation.org

Sidney Hillman was the founder and president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, a predecessor union of Workers United, SEIU.

Hillman Prizes and Awards

For more than 60 years, the renowned Hillman Prizes have saluted the best reporting on social and economic injustice. Our latest programs broaden our reach to reward important voices year-round.

The Sidney Hillman Foundation

Honoring excellence in journalism in service of the common good

Recognizing Fortitude

“They say that virtue is its own reward. But when it comes to the often thankless, sometimes harrowing, seldom glamorous, always hard journalistic work of describing social injustice, exposing its perpetrators, and understanding its underlying causes, a little bit of extra encouragement can help. That’s why the work of the Hillman Foundation is so important.”

Hendrik Herzberg
The New Yorker and Hillman judge

Celebrating Excellence

Each year, our awards reception gathers a large and distinguished group of journalists, activists, artists, union members, nonprofit and business leaders, and philanthropists for a stimulating evening of great journalism and great company.